

What is “additional skinning”?

After your hunt, you have caped out your trophy. However, that does not mean it is ready to be sent to the tannery. We charge a fee for “additional skinning” ($75-$125 depending on animal) on most North American mounts. This covers the cost of removing any additional fat and flesh in the eyes, lips, mouth and ears. We also turn the ears and salt the hide. This ensures that you get the best mount possible. If we examine your cape and it is determined that you did the additional skinning necessary, there will not be a charge.